The UN Secretary-General highlighted, in his 2012 report on “Peacebuilding in the Aftermath of Conflict”, that, “a successful peacebuilding process must be transformative and create space for a wider set of actors — including, but not limited to, representatives of women, young people, victims and marginalized communities; community and religious leaders; civil society actors; and refugees and internally displaced persons — to participate in public decision-making on all aspects of post-conflict governance and recovery.”

Fostering social cohesion and trust through an inclusive and participatory peacebuilding process during and after a transition or conflict is a challenging but necessary task. Many key stakeholders remain on the margins or excluded from the processes. In particular, the potential contribution and inclusion of young people to effective peacebuilding has received little attention and support.

Yet, young people’s leadership and roles in preventing and resolving conflict, violence and extremism are rich resources essential to building sustainable peace. Young people are valuable innovators and agents of change, and their contribution should be actively supported, solicited and regarded as part of building peaceful communities and supporting democratic governance and transition. Young people’s participation promotes civic engagement and active citizenship.

Promoting the participation of young people in peacebuilding requires multiple approaches:

1. A human rights-based approach, grounded in the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) and the World Programme of Action on Youth;
2. An economic approach that identifies young people as central to the economic development of their country, and promote their access to economic opportunities as essential for their own development;
3. A socio-political approach that connects young people to civil society and the political arena, and provides them with opportunities, training and support for their active engagement and participation in public life; and
4. A socio-cultural approach that analyses the roles of young people in existing structures and supports dialogue, including an intergenerational dialogue, about these structures.

The principle of “do no harm” is fundamental in all instances, and requires an awareness and active avoidance of the negative consequences that interventions can inadvertently create. In addition, all participation should be based on free will.

The following principles were identified to offer guidance to key actors, including governments, UN entities, funds and programmes, local, national and international non-governmental organizations, civil society actors and donors. These principles are designed to inform participative, inclusive and inter-generational peacebuilding strategies and programmes that systematically promote and ensure participation and contributions of young people in these challenging conflict contexts where violence has often become the norm. They are not listed in order of priority and are all of equal importance to consider.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES ON YOUNG PEOPLE’S PARTICIPATION IN PEACEBUILDING

2 Defined by the UN as between the ages of 10 and 24.
1 PROMOTE YOUNG PEOPLE’S PARTICIPATION AS AN ESSENTIAL CONDITION FOR SUCCESSFUL PEACEBUILDING

1.1 Prioritize regular, systematic, meaningful participation of young people as an essential condition for the sustainability, inclusiveness and success of peacebuilding efforts. This is of particular importance where young people constitute a majority of the population.

1.2 Promote and abide by the understanding that the majority of young people strive for peace and stability and that a number of them are actively engaged in peacebuilding efforts; only a minority of young people engages in violence.

1.3 Link young people’s participation in peacebuilding to all sectors (social, economic, cultural and political) and levels (family, school, community, local, regional and national governance).

1.4 Promote sustainable, long-term and collaborative initiatives for and with young people, including joint initiatives that build on existing efforts and interventions at scale. Avoid short-term projects that will only benefit a few.

2 VALUE AND BUILD UPON YOUNG PEOPLE’S DIVERSITY AND EXPERIENCES

2.1 Acknowledge that definitions of ‘young people’ vary depending on social, cultural and political contexts and strive to understand the national and local contexts that young people have grown up in.

2.2 Value diversity among young people and develop targeted strategies to involve and include young people from different backgrounds, taking into account differences in age, gender, ethnicity, culture, religion, class, caste, education, social status, place of residence (rural/urban), sexual orientation, physical and intellectual abilities, interests, etc.

2.3 Involve hard-to-reach young people who belong to groups often disproportionately affected by conflict, including disabled young people and young people from minority and indigenous groups.

2.4 Make specific efforts to reach out to marginalized young people within all these groups; do not assume that elite youth leaders from civil society represent them.

2.5 Support young people and youth-led organizations to reflect on patterns of inclusion and exclusion, and to work pro-actively to address discrimination, which is often one of the root causes of conflict.

2.6 Respect the experiences of all, including those of young people associated with conflict, and make special efforts to facilitate the active participation of young people who are more vulnerable to recruitment by armed groups and/or otherwise involved in violence.

3 BE SENSITIVE TO GENDER DYNAMICS

3.1 Avoid stereotypical assumptions about the roles and aspirations of girls, boys, young women, young men and young transgender people in conflict.

3.2 Recognize the specific grievances or vulnerabilities that young people might have as a result of the conflict and violence, and that these experiences are often gendered.

3.3 Identify strategies to reach out to young women, seek their engagement, and create a safe space to raise their specific issues and concerns and support their initiatives.

4 ENABLE YOUNG PEOPLE’S OWNERSHIP, LEADERSHIP AND ACCOUNTABILITY IN PEACEBUILDING

4.1 Identify young people and youth led-organizations involved in peacebuilding initiatives: find them, learn from them and support them.

4.2 Create opportunities for young people’s sustained participation, ownership and leadership in local, national, regional and international mechanisms to prevent, manage and resolve conflict and maintain peace.

4.3 Foster trust and support power-sharing between decision makers and young people, especially through intergenerational dialogue and youth-adult trust building activities and trainings.

4.4 Work with young people who are influential among their peers and foster their leadership skills, while simultaneously ensuring participation of marginalized young people.

4.5 Facilitate mechanisms, both physical and virtual, for feedback and communication to enable young leaders to be accountable to their peers, communities and partners.

5 DO NO HARM

5.1 Provide a physically, socially and emotionally safe and supportive environment for young people to participate in peacebuilding and post-conflict activities.

5.2 Acknowledge the trauma that many young people have suffered, and offer a safe space to share experiences, including access to psychosocial support, justice and other support services for their rehabilitation and reintegration.
5.3 Be sensitive to divides and inequalities among and between young people, their peers and their communities, avoid exacerbating these, fomenting stereotypes, or creating potentially difficult or dangerous situations for young people before, during and after their participation.

5.4 Ensure that facilitators are specifically trained to handle difficult conversations and situations and know where to refer young people who might need specialized services.

5.5 Be cautious about offering too many opportunities and services to young people who have been involved in violence, to avoid incentivizing others to turn to violence or engage with armed groups to receive money or support.

6 INVOLVE YOUNG PEOPLE IN ALL STAGES OF PEACEBUILDING AND POST-CONFLICT PROGRAMMING

6.1 Involve diverse groups of young people in identifying critical interventions that can change the dynamics of conflict and violence and in analysing the conflict and the roles of different actors.

6.2 Use tailored and age-appropriate methodologies for young people to contribute directly to designing, implementing, monitoring, evaluating and following up on peacebuilding and post-conflict programmes and processes.

6.3 Advocate for and support institutionalizing young people’s participation and representation in local and national governance processes so that they can influence practices and policies affecting them and ensure youth have the appropriate training and support to engage in these processes.

6.4 Promote and facilitate young people’s civic engagement and volunteerism for peace.

6.5 Have relevant decision-makers, institutions and organizations commit to accountability to young people. Establish mechanisms to communicate with and receive feedback from young people, particularly as part of any youth-focused programme and policy framework.

6.6 Offer alternative sources of power to young people who have attained political, social and economic power using violent means.

7 ENHANCE THE KNOWLEDGE, ATTITUDES, SKILLS AND COMPETENCIES OF YOUNG PEOPLE FOR PEACEBUILDING

7.1 Nurture young people’s skills in leadership, mediation, negotiation, conflict resolution, communication, life skills and positive social norms.

7.2 Create opportunities for young people to share goals and aspirations with adults as well as among each other, to capitalize on their experiences and assets, and to engage in multiple areas, including social, emotional, moral, spiritual, civic, vocational, physical, cognitive, personal and cultural development.

7.3 Identify young people who can be positive role models and provide guidance to younger individuals.

7.4 Promote positive relationships between young people and adult mentors who can help guide young people during life transitions and provide them with the vision and confidence to realize their goals.

7.5 Develop violence prevention strategies that go beyond simple security responses and encompass prevention of violence in the family, school, community, and which support reinsertion and rehabilitation.

8 INVEST IN INTER-GENERATIONAL PARTNERSHIPS IN YOUNG PEOPLE’S COMMUNITIES

8.1 Increase dialogue, understanding and opportunities for cooperation among children, young people, parents and elders, in order to act jointly to prevent and resolve violence and transform conflicts.

8.2 Work with adults so that they see the empowerment of young people as a positive change, not a threat to their own power and position.

8.3 Recognize and promote the role of local, regional and national governments to support young people’s participation in processes and decisions which affect their lives.

9 INTRODUCE AND SUPPORT POLICIES THAT ADDRESS THE FULL NEEDS OF YOUNG PEOPLE

9.1 Prioritize the development of youth-focused and youth-inclusive policies as an important peace dividend.

9.2 Contribute to the establishment of or support existing local, regional and national fora and other appropriate channels of communication that can enhance young people’s participation in development of public policies which affect the lives of young people.

9.3 Support research on youth and peacebuilding that can be used as a reference for policy.

9.4 Support the development of inclusive national policies that address the needs and aspirations of young people, contribute to young people’s participation, development and empowerment, and that are fully aligned with international human rights, regional instruments and key policy documents.

Search for Common Ground, Guiding Principles of SFCG’s Children & Youth programming (http://www.sfcg.org/programmes/childrenandyouth/index.html)

These guiding principles were developed by the Subgroup on Youth Participation in Peacebuilding of the UN Interagency Network on Youth Development. The Subgroup on Youth Participation in Peacebuilding is co-chaired by the UN Peacebuilding Support Office (PBSO) and Search for Common Ground (SFCG) and consists of members representing a number of UN agencies, (I)NGOs, academics and youth-led organizations. These guiding principles have benefitted greatly from inputs from over a 1,000 stakeholders and organizations, including Communities without Boundaries, ECDWAS, Inter-Agency Network for Education in Emergencies, InterPeace, MercyCorps, Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Children and Armed Conflict, Office of the Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Violence Against Children, Search for Common Ground, UN Alliance of Civilizations, UN Office on Sports for Development and Peace, UN Peacebuilding Support Office, UN Programme on Youth, UNFPA, UNDP, UN-HABITAT, UNICEF, UNV, United Network of Young Peacebuilders, USAID, Women’s Refugee Commission, World Vision International, etc. However, the ideas and opinions expressed in these principles do not necessarily reflect the views of these organizations.
